

Ir Patrick L.T. Chan is a civil engineer by profession. He obtained his BSc. from the University of Wisconsin-Madison, USA, and his MSc. from the UNESCO-IHE Institute for Water Education, the Netherlands, in 2002 and 2015 respectively. He is currently the senior engineer of Flood Resilience Section of Drainage Services Department and experienced in various stormwater management aspects including drainage impact assessment, R&D in sustainable drainage system, and revitalising water bodies. Ir Chan is the head of hydraulic modelling team, providing technical advice on drainage and sewerage projects. He also engages in flood resilience planning and the promotion of blue green infrastructure for the department.